The Kingdom of Elden, whose lands lie between the realms of mortals and immortals, sits at the center of a vast and diverse world. Through the preservation of Elden's magical energy, the Elden Shield, life continues to flourish across the multiverse. The Great Elden Shield is spread across the multiverse, and is known as the magical protector of all worlds, where the Elden Shield maintains the balance of magic. The eldenian power flowing through the Great Elden Shield holds the power of those who live, and the magical lines of the Great Elden Shield can be intertwined with those of other worlds. Even if the Great Elden Shield is broken, that which lives will always retain the power of the primal elden magic. The Great Elden Shield protects the Land of Dawn that lies between Elden and the multiverse. Unearthed by humans, this land contains a magic never before seen in the world: the power to change the past. The four elements of the world-water, wind, fire and earth-coexist, and at a point in the past, the sky itself separated, and the four elements parted. At the time, a great battle occurred between the four elements, and a magical barrier was created. The elder dragon Arthar protected this magic barrier. Half-human and half-dragon, Arthar fought for almost 20 years in the Land of Dawn, until the power of his magic exhausted itself. The power of Arthar's magic fused with the magic of the four elements, and the five-dimensional world that Arthar protected took shape. At the time when Arthar was protecting the world, the dragon's connection to human society was also at its weakest, and he began to sleep, becoming mired in slumber. After Arthar's death, the people who lived on this land did not know about the change that had taken place, and so they did not know the reason behind Arthar's awakening. They just saw him as a harmless dragon, and took him for granted. The Land of Dawn was protected by the four elements and Arthar for a long time. However, the dragon Arthar had forged close ties with humans, and so they built a house and raised livestock in the land. After Arthar had awoken, the people in the Land of Dawn built houses, planted crops,

This comes about a week after his blistering convention performance, where he was guest-edited and introduced many of the Party's main themes. This tactic of promoting the "establishment" candidates to steer the convention has caused some frustration with fans and Cruz skeptics. There's a belief that the GOP's remaining establishment wing is exhausted from a years-long "culture war". Cruz is looking to change this by co-opting nearly 20% of the delegates and not just on the first ballot, but on subsequent ballots. He also reportedly wants a floor fight in Cleveland. Both of these things would, at least temporarily, give the illusion that the Cruz-Trump fight is still alive. Quid Pro Quo This new strategy is called "quid pro quo". A: The jQuery clone plugin has a parameter that provides this functionality. If you're using the bootstrap Twitter plugin with the fade animation, you can use the btn-default or the btn-default-gradient variants. The width parameter is probably what you want for your example. It's the "button" class: Login

A: If you are not using any CSS3 animation - that is no slide-left and no scale, then all you have to do is animate the left position of the box element. To animate the left position: .content{ left:50px; } You can change the number 50px to whatever you need to get the desired result. To animate the box to change the left property, use the.animate() method: $(this).animate({left: '0'}, 'slow'); You can hook this to your login button like so: $(document).ready(function () { $(".login").on("click", function () { $(".content").animate({left: '0'}, 'slow'); }); }); I tested this in chrome and it works. The effect of chronic methamphetamine on hypothalamic and striatal 5-HT axonal transport. The effect of chronic methamphetamine (MA) on the 5-HT axonal transport in the hypothalamus and striatum was investigated in rats. In the hypothalamus, the density of catecholamine-filled axons showed no significant change in the MA-treated animals. However, the rate of retrograde axonal transport from the hypothalamus to the dorsal raphe decreased significantly in the chronic MA group. Analysis of the pattern of axonal transport revealed that axonal transport in MA-treated animals was still shifted to the dorsal raphe, whereas in controls the right shift resulted in a twofold increase in the extent of transport to the dorsal raphe. In the striatum, chronic MA caused a marked increase in the density of 5-
